Overview of the Bond Market Classification Framework

The Bond Market Classification Framework describes the framework used to classify bond markets according to their respective levels of market development. The framework classifies markets as Developed, Emerging or Frontier.

Proposed Change to the Bond Market Classification

Solactive has decided to conduct a Market Consultation with regard to the reclassification of countries below as a result of the annual review of the Bond Market Classification. The change in classification is as follows:

- After conducting the annual review of the Solactive Bond Market Classification, Maldives is no longer eligible to be consider in hard currency list. Currently there is no issue from Maldives which makes it impossible to further check the market. Solactive suggests excluding Maldives from the hard currency bond market list.
